What is The Urban Rabbit Project?

The Urban Rabbit Project (URP) is a non-profit organization that promotes the welfare of rabbits in urban environments. We provide resources and support to rabbit owners, and we advocate for policies that protect rabbits.

URP was founded in 2018 by a group of rabbit lovers who were concerned about the increasing number of rabbits being abandoned in cities. We believe that rabbits are wonderful companions, and we are committed to helping them thrive in urban environments.

What We Do

URP provides a variety of resources and support to rabbit owners, including:

- Information about rabbit care, including diet, housing, and health

- A directory of rabbit-friendly veterinarians and other resources
- Support groups for rabbit owners
- Advocacy for policies that protect rabbits

URP also works to educate the public about rabbits and their needs. We give presentations to schools, community groups, and other organizations. We also work with the media to promote positive stories about rabbits.

Why We Do It

Rabbits are wonderful companions, but they are often misunderstood and mistreated. URP believes that all rabbits deserve to live happy and healthy lives. We are committed to helping rabbits thrive in urban environments, and we will continue to fight for their welfare.

How You Can Help

There are many ways that you can help URP in our mission to promote the welfare of rabbits in urban environments. Here are a few ideas:

- Donate to URP
- Volunteer your time
- Adopt a rabbit from a local shelter or rescue organization
- Educate your friends and family about rabbits and their needs
- Support URP's advocacy efforts
